Saudi Labor Law Training: HR Compliance, Qiwa & Employment Regulations

Course Overview:

Saudi Labor Law & HR Compliance is a practical five-day Saudi Labor Law Training program designed to help HR professionals, managers, compliance teams, and business leaders translate Saudi employment legislation into accurate day-to-day HR practices. The course reflects the updated Saudi Labour Law framework, including the recent Saudi Labor Law Amendments, revised employment requirements, employee protections, and employer obligations that shape Saudi Labor Law 2026. The amendments address areas including probation, resignation procedures, maternity leave, overtime arrangements, non-Saudi employment contracts, disciplinary procedures, localization, and termination.

Participants examine the complete employment lifecycle, from recruitment and the Saudi Employment Contract through Saudi Probation Period requirements, working hours, Saudi Employee Leave Entitlements, disciplinary action, resignation, Saudi Labor Law Termination, and Saudi End of Service Benefits. The program also connects employment law with operational Saudi HR Compliance Training, including Qiwa HR Compliance, Qiwa Employment Contracts, Saudi Payroll Compliance, the Wage Protection System Saudi Arabia, Saudization Compliance, and relevant Nitaqat considerations. The uploaded HR compliance guide specifically emphasizes reconciling Qiwa employment information, payroll records, and wage data as part of modern digital HR compliance.

For further practical insight into current regulatory developments, participants can refer to the CPD article, Saudi Labour Law 2026: Comprehensive HR Compliance Guide, which provides additional context on employment contracts, Qiwa compliance, working hours, leave, payroll, Saudization, and end-of-service obligations.

The course focuses on practical interpretation, risk prevention, documentation, policy alignment, and legally informed HR decision-making rather than purely theoretical legal study.

Training Methodology:

The course uses an applied corporate learning approach that connects Saudi Employment Law Training with realistic HR decisions rather than presenting the legislation only article by article. Facilitated discussions introduce the relevant provisions of the Saudi Labour Law before participants analyze how those requirements affect employment contracts, payroll, employee relations, localization, and separation processes.

Case studies are used throughout the program to examine situations involving Saudi Probation Period, contract renewal, leave, overtime, disciplinary action, resignation, and Saudi Labor Law Termination. Participants work through realistic scenarios to determine the correct documentation, decision sequence, potential compliance risk, and appropriate HR response.

Group activities focus on reviewing sample Saudi Employment Contract clauses, identifying Qiwa HR Compliance issues, reconciling payroll and employment information, and examining Wage Protection System Saudi Arabia considerations. Participants also discuss Saudization Compliance and Nitaqat-related workforce implications while distinguishing statutory requirements from company policy.

Practical calculation examples support understanding of wages, overtime, deductions, and Saudi End of Service Benefits. Scenario-based discussions on Saudi Disciplinary Procedures develop participants' ability to document misconduct and apply procedural safeguards.

Daily reflection sessions consolidate learning and allow participants to connect Saudi Labor Law and HR Compliance Training requirements directly to their own organizational practices. Feedback is provided throughout to correct interpretation and strengthen practical application.

FAQ:

What specific qualifications or prerequisites are needed for participants before enrolling in the course?

No specific legal qualification is required. The course is suitable for HR professionals, managers, payroll personnel, compliance professionals, administrators, and other employees responsible for workforce management in Saudi Arabia. Previous exposure to HR policies, employee relations, employment contracts, payroll, or Saudi workplace practices is helpful but not mandatory.

How long is each day's session, and is there a total number of hours required for the entire course?

Each day's session is generally structured to last around 4-5 hours, with breaks and interactive activities included. The total course duration spans five days, approximately 20-25 hours of instruction.

What are the most important Saudi Labor Law changes HR teams should understand when managing employees?

HR teams should pay particular attention to changes affecting employment contracts, the Saudi Probation Period, resignation procedures, maternity and other leave entitlements, overtime compensation options, disciplinary notifications, employee grievances, localization-related compliance, and non-Saudi employment arrangements. Effective Saudi HR Compliance Training should connect these legal requirements with contracts, payroll, Qiwa records, HR policies, employee relations, and termination processes rather than treating each requirement independently.

How This Course is Different from Other Saudi Labor Law Training Courses:

Saudi Labor Law & HR Compliance goes beyond explaining legislation and focuses on what HR professionals must actually do before, during, and after employment decisions. Instead of treating Saudi Labor Law Training as a purely legal subject, the course connects the law directly with Qiwa HR Compliance, Qiwa Employment Contracts, employee documentation, Saudi Payroll Compliance, the Wage Protection System Saudi Arabia, Saudization Compliance, disciplinary procedures, and workforce separation.

The course follows the employee lifecycle from recruitment and the Saudi Employment Contract through probation, working conditions, Saudi Employee Leave Entitlements, payroll, employee relations, resignation, Saudi Labor Law Termination, and Saudi End of Service Benefits. This creates a practical compliance framework that HR teams can apply across daily operations.

Particular attention is given to the recent Saudi Labor Law Amendments, including the 180-day probation framework, updated non-Saudi contract provisions, resignation procedures, maternity leave changes, overtime alternatives, disciplinary notification requirements, and localization implications.

The program also emphasizes consistency between HR decisions and supporting documentation. Participants learn to identify compliance gaps before they become employee disputes, payroll issues, contract inconsistencies, or termination risks. This makes the course especially suitable for organizations seeking operational Saudi Labor Law and HR Compliance Training, rather than a general introduction to employment law.
